Abstract: In this material the authors analyze results of the conference “Development of traditional medicine in Russia”. The speakers addressed theoretical and practical aspects of traditional medicine, perspectives of ancient healing traditions and modern healthcare integration. Scholars from different countries of the world attended this event. During the first day theoretical talks paved the way for further discussion (described in detail in the Russian text). Next day the participants went to Lake Baikal, to the Clinic of rehabilitation treatment. During the conference the members attended seminars on traditional medicine, presented various healing methods, as well as diagnostic and treatment equipment. They concluded agreements on inter-regional and international cooperation in the realm of traditional medicine.
